

Dinklaker Quality Instruments

Attention to detail – it's what sets Dinklaker Quality Instruments apart from all other sousaphone manufacturers the world over. Here, Earl Pringler welds a delicately filigreed brass ring to one of the bells, which not only makes the instrument look nice but also improves its aerodynamics, a definite boon to anyone who has to march around a football field with one of these babies on his back for the better part of a cold and blustery afternoon.