

More Collateral Damage

“Never mind the collateral damage. Those groundhogs have to go!” And with those words, Mayor Corky Dinklaker set into motion Plan B, a strategy that would once and for all rid Bung Hollow, West Virginia, of its acute rodent infestation. Critics would point out later, however, that there was rather a lot of collateral damage.