

At Santa's Laboratory

“See, Lulubelle?” said Santa cheerily. “That’s the head of your cousin, Urdang. And that one over there, that was your brother, Argilt. And next to him is his Uncle Cyclops, who would be your Aunt Meptang. See how happy they all are?! Now, don’t you think Grackle, your little sister, would be just as happy to have her head on display here? I sure do! Grackle, honey,” cooed the jolly old elf. “Wouldn’t you like to donate your head to Santa’s Laboratory for kids all over the world to see?” Santa was such a convincing salesman that both Lulubelle and Grackle readily agreed. And soon it was off to Santa’s Laboratory for little Grackle – who only later realized what a silly life-changing decision she had made.