

Le crachoir électrique

The always unorthodox ideas of charismatic inventor Ernesto Dinklaker led to a host of fabulous creations over the course of his forty-five-year career. The lone exception was his personal favorite: the electric spittoon. Unable to understand why it failed to garner any interest whatsoever, Ernesto retired from the inventing business and went off to make a name for himself in another story.