

Uncured Like Ham

Reg Pringler was one of the top chiropractors in the city, and sufferers of chronic back pain from far and wide flocked to him to have their neuro-musculoskeletal maladies put right. But while Reg was head and shoulders above the competition in the back cracking department, his skills at resolving neck disorders, even simple ones, were questionable at best. Just ask members of the St. Salmons' Comet Spotting Club who, en masse, were treated by Dr. Pringler one afternoon last fall but, sadly, remained as uncured as an old ham.
